

Packing Glassware in 5 Simple Steps

Step 1 – Place Crumpled Paper On Bottom & Select A Strong Sturdy Box

Start with a strong, sturdy box. The box perimeter ultimately protects the glassware and other fragile items. You want a box that will keep its shape and help cushion the glass.

Step 2 – Create A Cushion On The Bottom Of The Box

Use newspaper or bubble wrap to create a cushioned base. To create a protective barrier, it's a good idea to also line all other sides of the box with bubble wrap as well.

Step 3 – Roll Each Glass In Newsprint

Open the newspaper from the centerfold. Place the glass in one of the corners. Roll the glass diagonally in a few sheets of newspaper. Tuck in the extra paper on top into the glass and the extra paper on the bottom into itself as you continue to roll the glass.

Step 4 – Use A Cardboard Glass Separator or Cardboard to Create Layers

Creating separation between the glasses will help prevent breakage, providing an added cushion as items shift during the moving process.

Step 5 – Tightly Tape The Box In a “Plus” Pattern and Label It “Fragile”

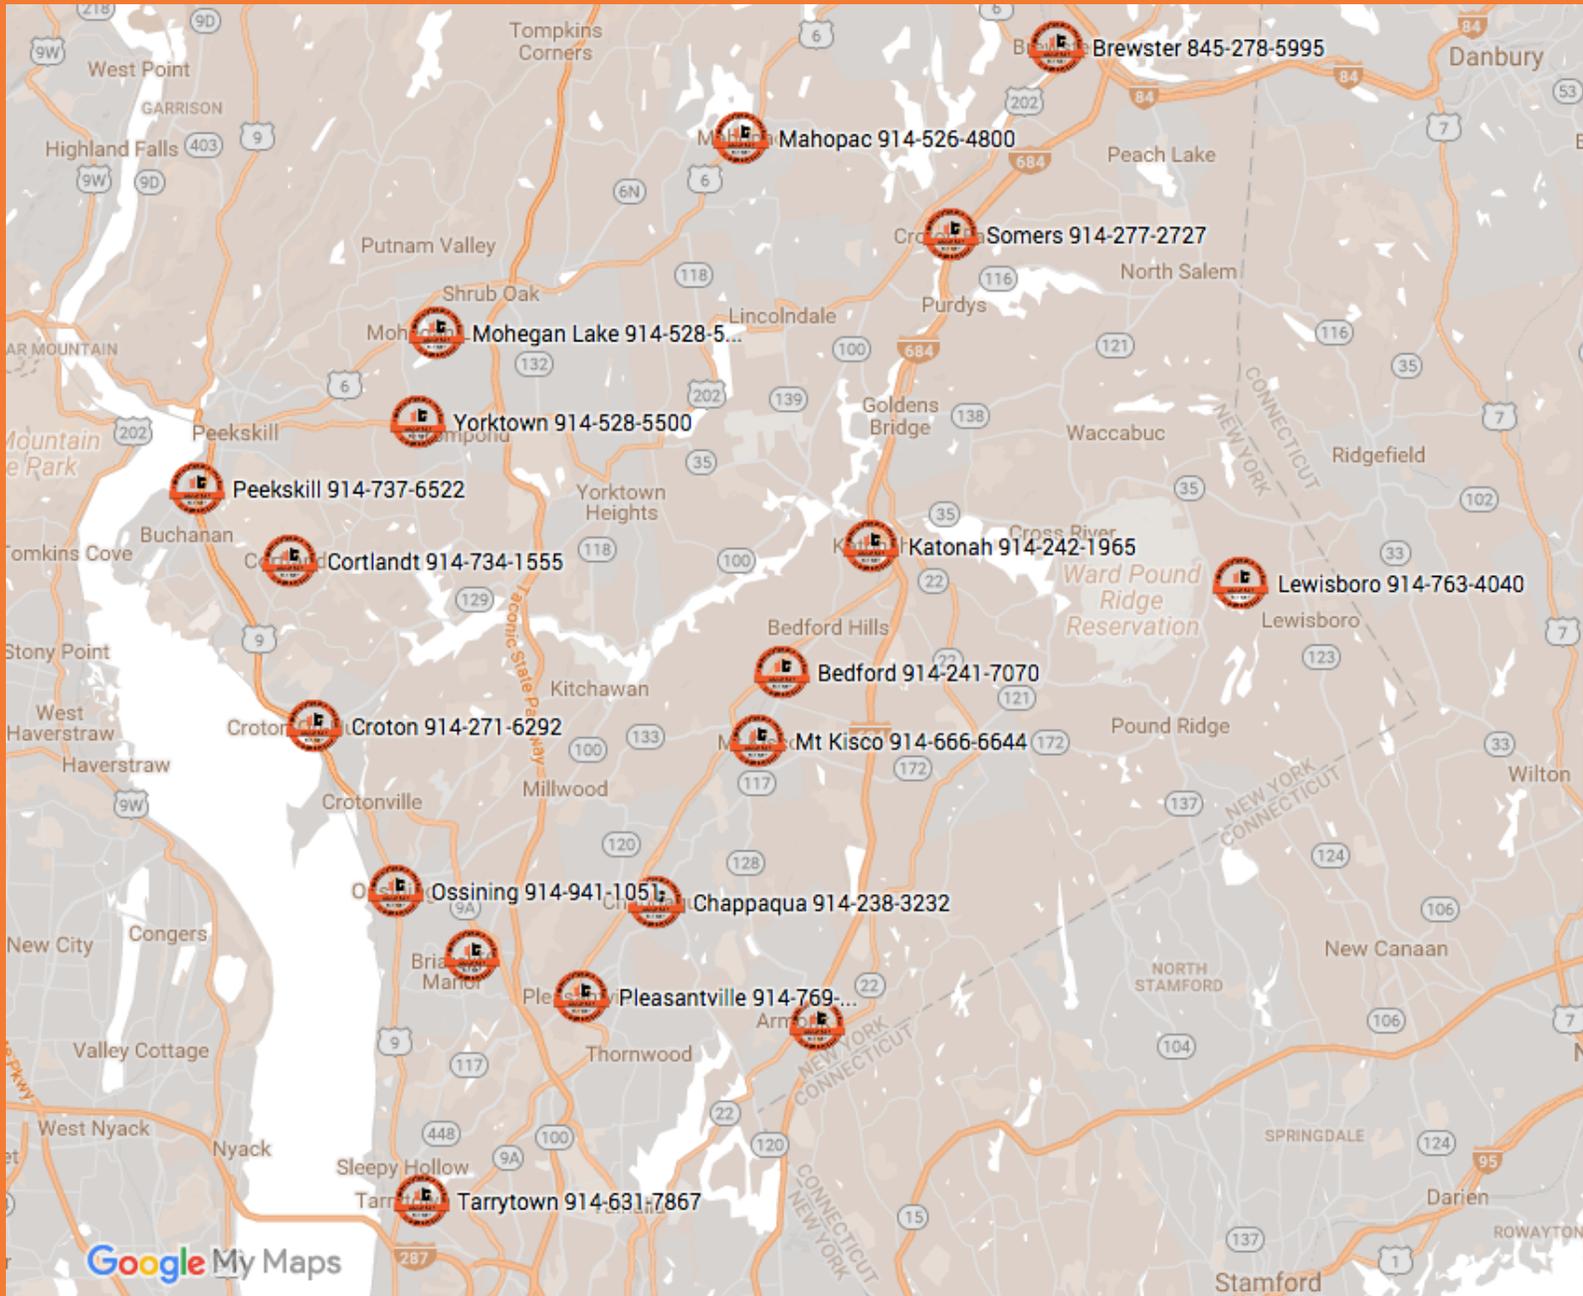

Strengthen the integrity of the box by running packing tape across the top and bottom opening and perpendicular to the opening seam. Doing so in a “plus” pattern helps strengthen the box. As a final step, make sure to label the box “fragile” or “fragile glassware”.
